

We Will Rise Again

Allen-Lande

A battle between two different worlds
Different lives but we share the same sky
I still wonder why
Innocent souls have been torn apart
The guilty ones are far away by now
I still wonder how

We have been in darker places
The angels will protect us
We know evil has many faces
We won't be fooled anymore

Beneath the sky far from the stars
We're ready to fight for what is ours
There have been so many wars
The time has come when we will rise
Too many years of pain have past
We will reclaim our throne at last
The days of darkness will end now
The time has come when we will rise again

We are still alive and still have hope
Gather ones more this black winter night
Prepare for one last fight
Ignore the cold ignore the pain
Don't listen to the sound of the enemies closing in
This time they won't win

We have been in darker places
The angels will protect us
We know evil has many faces
We won't be fooled anymore

Beneath the sky far from the stars
We're ready to fight for what is ours
There have been so many wars
The time has come when we will rise
Too many years of pain have past
We will reclaim our throne at last
The days of darkness will end now
The time has come when we will rise again
We will rise again

We have been in darker places
The angels will protect us
We know evil has many faces
But we won't be fooled again

Beneath the sky far from the stars
We're ready to fight for what is ours
There have been so many wars
The time has come when we will rise
Too many years of pain have past
We will reclaim our throne at last
The days of darkness will end now
The time has come when we will rise again
We will rise again