

Breathe so I can feel you on me and trust in everything you believe There's a million different reasons why I should hold back
But I've come to far to sever it all Do or die I've taken the fall
And so let's drive under cover of a blood red sky Another mile until we finally step out from the darkness of the night
We'll wave goodbye to the former lives we'll leave behind As they fade away into the rear view while all these streetlights pass by Wait just for a while and you'll see This could be everything that you need It's the perfect ending to a life of promises and ideals that have fallen apart now this time it's right from the start So drive with me to the end of the road we're on Ride this out until we end up alone Fate is all that we can make of it What do you want to make of it tonight?
