

Tokyo Sunrise

Allister

I woke up yesterday 20,000 miles from home
Got a picture postcard from you in my pocket
I woke up yesterday with a burning in my soul Got this feeling that I might be losing something that could make my whole world come alive Have I been a fool for loving you?
How so quickly our hearts collide
Just one look from your eyes and I knew I would need you the rest of my life
Just one touch from your hand makes me shiver all over inside I've been waiting for your call from clear across the ocean to carry me back home so I can finally rest my head for one more night
Yeah I am begging for one moment to fall into your arms so I can find Everything real we both shared that summer night I woke up yesterday in this cold, downtown hotel got a cigarette still burning in my hand Through my window I watched these trains roll by again I've been staring at nothing just hoping for something to take me away
Don't think that I wouldn't walk a thousand miles or Pull the stars out of the sky
Just to have you in my life We'll take it slow we'll take it easy for a while Then we'll show the world....
I'm feeling so lonely watching this Tokyo sunrise....