

Zoo

Ani DiFranco

I can no longer watch TV
Cause that shit really melts my brain
I think I'm what they call sensitive
And easily thrown off my game

All that bloodshed and pettiness
Just makes the world seem so insane
And I just feel drained

When I go to do my food shopping
And all I can see is the packaging
One big mountain of garbage
About to be happening

And I walk past my own self-loathing
Like I walk past animals in the zoo
Trying not to really see them
And the prison they didn't choose

If I should ever quit your spotlight
I hope you won't think me wrong
Says the poet to the moonlight
Says the singer to the song

It's enough just to stay upright
Upright in every single way
Pour your love into your children

Pour your love into your children
