I keep saying don't beat yourself down you never had much and n ever asked for lesss than truth, not promises the truth is I st ill live in hell treading pools that are shallow when I touch t he bottom. the bottle still I reach up although my hands hurt a nd aim high in a world so confined I'd rather die with my face all torn up wrists in handcuffs with pride than believe lies I keep saying this time you won't be let down, you've learned to touch, to bond, to share, to act and move, to rebel. the fact is I jus tkeep on talking blindly and you can't relate, I know the game you act like you care when you don't