We run like it kills us to stay

If judged, I'd be nothing 'till the day that I stopped you

As trite as these things might seem to anyone else

I wrote them down to document

My worth is you My worth is you

Excessive city we can't afford to stay
But home to the same somehow safe now we can afford to leave
Transformation and tragedy breeds conclusion
Our world marches to drums of death

You're my rest Stories will sleep Say goodnight to them You know it's ending

Slow my mind Silence the truth Take my broken hands Watch the world renew

The stories read of hospitals and alcohol And empty households
The bars were steeped in honesty
While your retreat
Was East of me

The buildings fail on everything and everyone Fed incoherent Our time is now We're leaving

You're my death
I'm your disease
Together we will bleed devotedly concede

La la la la La la la la

Take my broken hands Watch it all ending We watch it all ending
