Our land is dying in the hands of their children, without love, without conscience, man beats the ground where he lays And I do not breathe the air that gave me life, I do not feel soft rain on my skin and all that I had touched, now is scarred Its heart shakes Its blood is lava There is no flat land, or monsters that leave a sailor dying, only creatures unable to care for our future, carelessly traded, born to destroy And I do not breathe the air that gave me life, I do soft rain on $my\ skin\ and\ all\ that\ I\ had$ touched, now is scarred from the corrosive touch of acid rain the human race created If you die our time is erased your voice is the sound of the woods your breath is life, I will fly and can't find the ground your eyes turn to the sunrise and I'm lost in the depths of your being If you die our time is erased your voice is the sound of the woods Our land is dying in the hands of their children, without love, without conscience, beats the ground where he lays

And I do not breathe the

and all that I had touched, soft rain on my skin

air that gave me life, I do not feel

now is scarred

And all that I had touched
now is scarred