

Love Is Everything (That I Describe)

Blues Traveler

As simple as a kiss
So subtle and so missed
So ached for so doomed to be deprived
Love is everything that I've described

As lonesome as the sound
Of a memory leaving town
They say progress is a drink to be imbibed
But love is everything that I'd prescribe

As the shades of night come folding down
The moon and stars the only friends around
You can find me in the lost and found

The sunlight shines severe
And you are nowhere near
Of a heartache that cannot be denied
Love is everything that I've described

As the shades of night come folding down
The moon and stars the only friends around
You can find me in the lost and found

As simple as a kiss
So subtle and so missed
So ached for so doomed to be deprived
Love is everything that I've described
Love is everything that I've described
