The Shame In Shedding Wool

Burden of a Day

What wonderful strides with these legs What a taste on these on lips With these ears I hear a thousand sirens sing

Just a bit further
This skin It wears so well
With each step loosing wool
Be weary of the woods (no)
Be weary of the woods

This pasture is much too bright I need to shield these eyes and make my way to the shade Make a line for the trees

The only sing
To burn the forest down burn It down

Come one come all and bring what you've been fleeting from (come home come home)

Come as you are and know you are loved

I heard the sheep cry out like wolves

We wait with grace while you flee the sun

Bring me to heard
I've been cold wandering alone leave me alone

Come one come all and bring what you've been fleeting from (come home come home)

Come as you are and know you are loved

We wait with grace while you flee the sun

We wait with grace as you flee the sun

Spoonagain gotcha

Come home come home my love

I heard the sirens cry When their voice fell on deaf ears While sheep they sang as one hallelujah
