

You can't live without it
It's like fuel which drives you
You risk more and more and care for anything no more
As more danger as better
Have you ever remembered those who care for you?
Try to perceive your surroundings