Sirens

Last night I dreamt I was floating with you The river so deep and the sky perfect blue If we leave behind the dust in the sky From the sound of Sirens the city will rise Hold your hand in mine, we'll swim against the tide From the sound of Sirens love will survive

And when your heart is on the run When its chains have come undone I will always be the one to carry you home

Streets lie so empty, the lost avenues The lights of Saint Vincent are too much to lose If we leave behind the dust in the sky From the sound of Sirens the city will rise Hold your hand in mine, we'll swim against the tide From the sound of Sirens love will survive

And when your heart is on the run When its chains have come undone I will always be the one to carry you home

If we leave behind the tears in our eyes From the sound of Sirens the city will rise Hold your hand in mine, we'll swim against the tide From the sound of Sirens love will survive

And when your heart is on the run When its chains have come undone I will always be the one to carry you home Cher