Revolution Now

Can you here the winds of change As they're blowing on the streets From the school yards where we ran To the cafes where we eat From the lips of common man Burns a passion like the sun This is the sound of revolution

Revolution What we need is a Revolution To break the chains of this disillusioned System that's fucked So put your fist up and Revolt

Can you hear the winds of change As their knocking on the door Reciting words of wisdom The truth and so much more From the lips of common man Burns a passion like the sun This is the sound of revolution

What are we waiting for? Revolution, what we need is a [Repeat x4]
