The Gael

Cruachan

I hear you calling Your voice so fair I reach out to touch you But know you're not there

The summer is ending Clouds darken the sky As the rain starts to fall I weep and I cry

No more can I see you Now you have passed on The world seems so lifeless And cold with you gone

I look at the place Were we both used to lie And think of times past With a tear in my eye