Even Now

Dashboard Confessional

Even now I can smell your clothes Freshly from the wash Still hot from the dryer

Even now I can smell your skin As I wrap you in a towel Lay you on the bed And try to love you

Even now I can feel your arms
I can feel your breast
I can hear your songs
And I always can find you again

Even now I can feel your hand Gently over mine With almost no weight at all

Even now I can feel your eyes Watch me as I strum
Much too late at night

Even now I can see you smile
I can hear you hum
I can hear you sing
And I always can find you again

Even in the dark of night Even in the lowest light Even as the world outside Is spinning, and spinning

Even now I can feel your hair Blow across my cheek As we sit in one of two chairs

Even now I can feel your face Resting on my chest Wrestling for sleep And failing at it

Even now I can see you sleep
I can see you dream
I can see you fly
And I always can find you again
And I always can find you again
And I always can find you again
