

To Hell and Back

Dragonsfire

You never know about the things that will be
The future can never be seen
But things will get worse before they're getting better
That's how it used to be

But is there someone you can always count on?
When there's a friend in need

Life's a surprise for us and you know that it's true
You've got to learn to survive
The last in the line's the first to be forgotten
There is no chance to take time

Will we ever see the light of the day?
When we go down to the fire

Way down to hell and back again
Way down to hell, we feel the pain

The time of your suffering just never seems to end
But heaven will promise relief
Don't wait 'til you're dead, take control of this life
Don't let yourself rest in peace

But is there someone you can always count on?
When you are desperate and down

There is no hell, when there's no heaven
In both worlds we all live
The fear of death is the fear of wasted time
Don't let yourself rest in peace

Will we ever see the light of the day?
When we go down to the fire

Way down to hell and back again
Way down to hell, we feel the pain

Way down to hell and back again
Way down to hell, we feel the pain

Way down to hell we carry on
Way down to hell where we belong
