For You

Face to Face

I have given everything I have questioned my own faith Disbelief and discontent I still remember why I wanted this For you

When you stumble, when you fall They talk about it all When you fall apart Is it right for me to wait? When it might be too late And still I play the part

I've pretended I'm alright I have told a thousand lies I've become what I despise I have changed a dozen times For you

I've searched for something I can't find Accept the truth with peace of mind
