Hundred More Years

Francesca Battistelli

Diamond ring and twelve red roses Everything she ever wanted, all those dreams And now they're finally here

She's so young and he's so perfect
They waited for love and it was worth it
She wants to feel like this for a hundred years

All this life still yet to live and they can hardly wait They can laugh, they can cry The future looks so beautiful and bright

They can dance under the moonlight 'Cause God is smiling down on them tonight And she wants to stay right here
They can last for a hundred more years

She's got blue eyes just like her mother Three years old, he's crazy for her He wants to freeze this day before it disappears

She's spinning like a little princess
Making sure he's gonna notice
He could watch her twirl for a hundred years

She'll grow up and she'll leave home
But until that day they can laugh, they can cry
The future looks so beautiful and bright

They can dance under the moonlight 'Cause God is smiling down on them tonight And he wants to stay right here
They can last for a hundred more years

And it's only time but it flies right by And today is sweeter than we know

And so they dance under the moonlight God is smiling down on them tonight And they want to stay right here For a hundred more years