

She flirts with disaster
Always conscious, timeless pastor
Her presence enigmatic
No senseless time to waste

She juggles mime with laughter like a war
But exists in a silicone breed
There's only time for judgements
For others she needless say

Oh I'm tired
Of wanting some space
By myself
With no one lurking around