

Worth It All The While

Tallahassee
I've got something I should say to you.
Forgive me but my tongue's been tied.

It's the summer and
Well I tried not to come unglued
Can we both pretend the world would die
If the notes that I wrote
And then slipped in the palm of your hand
Were erased and dissolved and we fall like we're both too hurt to stand

If you scream just a little bit louder
Then I'll sing just a little bit more
Cause maybe we're what we've been waiting for

Speak softly
Whisper something you've never said
Just one secret I can keep as mine

Let me take your hand
Show you the way that my heart slows down
And how I think so loud
From our blanket on the ground

Could we be something I'll remember forever?
I'll ask you

If you scream just a little bit louder
Then I'll sing just a little bit more
Cause maybe we're what we've been waiting for
Cause these streets are a little bit colder
And who knows what waits in store
It's you and me forever and I'm sure
We're worth fighting for

Hold you're breath as you wait for the moment
Never liked the way you wanted just to hold it
To wrap a piece of every day as ours
We burn like shooting stars

If you scream just a little bit louder
Then I'll sing just a little bit more
Cause maybe we're what we've been waiting
Cause maybe we're what we've been waiting

If you scream just a little bit louder
Then I'll sing just a little bit more
Cause maybe we're what we've been waiting for
Cause these streets are a little bit colder
And who knows what waits in store
It's you and me forever and I'm sure
We're worth fighting for
