In visions of acid we saw through delusion and Brainbox pollution,

We knew we were right.

The streets were our oyster, we smoked urban Poison and we turned all this noise on, We knew how to fight.

We dropped out and tuned in, spoke secret Jargon and we would not bargain for what We had found in the days of the underground. We believed in Guevera, we saw that head held up And our anger welled up,

But we kept it cool.

No need for machine guns 'cause the system was Crumbling, our leaders were fumbling, While we broke every rule.

We saw them on T.V. they'd blown their cover and we Tried to smother their voices

With sound, in the days of the underground.
Whatever happened to those chromium heroes, are
There none of them still left around, since
The days of the underground?

Now we can look back at the heroes we were then, We made quite a stir with our sonic attack, Street-fighting dancers, the assassins of Silence, with make-believe violence, on a hundred Watt stack.

They offered us contracts, we said "we don't Need 'em", we'll just take our freedom and will Not be bound in the days of the underground. And some of us made it but not smiling Michael, His black motorcycle got eaten by rust. And John the Bog dreamt that he slept at the Wheel, but when he woke it was real, too late To have sussed.

And Jeff was a poet who wrote with a spray Can on walls,

Saying "Hey man, I believe that we've drowned" In the days of the underground.
