If you're picking up a pen, imagining a sword If you think I'd never flown to the heights at which you soared Picking up a pen, it's like picking up a spade To plant or sow a seed or digging your own grave

I'm made from stardust, like a planetary sun Same DNA as stardust, like an elephants trunk Is a snorkel full of water

Picking up a pen, imagining a sword If you think I'd never flown to the heights to which you soared Picking up a pen, it's like picking up a spade It`s a planet so it seems or digging your own grave

I'm made from stardust, like a planetary sun Same DNA as stardust, like an elephants trunk Is a snorkel full of water, is a snorkel full of water

Who'll feed the young 'cause they're starving In this beautiful world that you marvel in Who'd feed the young 'cause they're hungry In this beautiful world in that you live in for free

Same DNA as stardust, carbon-dated to last Same DNA as stardust, from a time that has passed I`m made from stardust, same DNA as stardust
