A witch will burn when she's thrown into the fire Not her she'll peel and writhe but never expire
She crawls on webs of lies I die up inside her to take what's mine that bitch the cinnamon spider

I won't try
and every time I tell that lie I live without guilt
and I won't cry
and I hope you love your life
and live with your guilt

Consumed by hate and guilt She'll never retire too old to fix too dead to ever acquire slit wrists - talk shit But she will never inspire a plan to save herself the cinnamon spider

I won't try
and every time I tell that lie
I live without guilt
and I won't cry
and I hope you love your life
and live with your guilt

bite heads off those who fail and try to imply her forlorn despised
I am the cinnamon spider

I won't try
and every time I tell that lie
I live without guilt
and I won't cry
and I hope you love your life
and live with your guilt

and I am fine and I'll learn to take what's mine and live without guilt Oh yeah