The Big Guns

Jenny Lewis

Well you praise him Then you thank him Til you reach the by-and-by And I've won hundreds at the track But I'm not betting on the afterlife

Then you kiss his lips He forgives you for it He forgives you for all you've done But not me I'm still angry

What have I done? Why am I always messing with The big guns?

First I'll build a sword Get some words to explain It's a plan, brother, at least And I'll pretend that everybody here wants peace Have mercy, have mercy, have mercy on me Cause we're tired and lonely and we're bloody

What have we done? Why are we still running From our own failing bodies? The big guns, the big guns...

Sing mercy, sing mercy, sing mercy on me Let's pretend that everybody here wants peace

What have we done? Why are we still chasing our own tails? And running... From the big guns, the big guns, the big guns
