

Tremble If You Must

John Denver

So tremble if you must
For the dust is still breathing
And the trees adjust just the leaves
On a big breathing blow.
And there's life in the rocks
And the seashells are listening
To the sound of the sea
As it slips on it's way