The Time Has Come

John Farnham

The tale is told, of a mighty land Great tempest ocean, shifting sand Of an ancient lore, in tribal might

After an age, of harmony
Came a reign, based on greed
They say that all roads lead to Rome

But now it's changing Now the time has come

So spare your heart, bare your breast For the light that fades, into the west Once more shall rise, as glory dawns