

Release You

Johnny Hates Jazz

Losing the fight, closing my eyes
I'd run out of luck and I'd run out of time
The beat of my heart was fading away
The last thing I saw was your beautiful face
You and I, we can't deny
That we're still holding on
To everything we thought was yet to be

So I Release You, yes I
I've made my peace with you now
It is time to say farewell
Deep inside you know
You've got to let me go
Though I love you with all my might
I must go towards the light

Everyday I watch as you grieve
I know that I must but I don't want to leave
I call out your name, you stop and you stare
There are only the trees but you know that I'm there
In this dream, the in-between
I wish that I could hold you
But I am just a presence in the wind

So I Release You, yes I
I've made my peace with you now
It is time to say farewell
Deep inside you know
You've got to let me go
Though I love you with all my might
I must go towards the light
Through the mist you blow a kiss
And then you walk away
And finally I know that I am free

So I Release You, yes I
I've made my peace with you now
It is time to say farewell
Deep inside you know
You've got to let me go
Though I love you with all my might
I must go towards the light
