

Strange Woman

June Carter Cash

Oh, a strange, strange woman, don't trust 'em from the start
Or a strange, strange woman will try to break your heart

Now woman don't feel sad, don't you pity me
I'll be on my feet when you're crawling on your knees
I'll bear the cross of my broken home
But strange, strange woman, can you bear yours alone?

Oh, a strange, strange woman, don't trust 'em from the start
Or a strange, strange woman will try to break your heart

Now he won't marry you and even if he did
How could you be happy with all the things you've hid?
A love without hope based on a cheating lie
Will soon melt away and wither up and die

Oh, a strange, strange woman, don't trust 'em from the start
Or a strange, strange woman will try to break your heart
Oh, a strange, strange woman, will surely break your heart
