Virginia Clemm

Katzenjammer

He was a child, I was a child Sentimental and wild Now we're resting Now we're resting

For twelve short years, we lived out of health And of prosperous wealth Oh, my dearest Oh, my dearest

My only portrait to remind you
My wine on your old cloak
My voice sustained in our piano
Comme les carillons de notre nuit de noces

Heir of my illness, writer of all The stories and the words That I'm wanting That I'm haunting

When your heart is on your sleeve Then I'll bid you my sweet adieu Don't forget me Don't forget me

The other woman to explain
Her letters I deplore
I'm the flare inside your sorry dark eyes
And I'll leave you nevermore
