Fragile

You think you know me And everything that you consider me You think you know my name You think you know me And everything you get a chance to see You think you know my face You think you know my face

You think you see me And everything that you consider me You think I'm more than you You think you see me You like the way I'm strong and stand by you But I am fragile too I am fragile too

Yeah I will be fine As the time goes by It may hurt at nights But I will be fine Yeah I will be just fine

They think they know me And everything that they consider me They think I never cry They are thinking While they're making up their twisted lies She won't mind, she's nice She's as cold as ice

Just like you
