Kings of Convenience

Stay Out of Trouble

One, two, One, two.

I walked around for hours, two ten pence pieces in my hand. I was alone and freezing, still trying hard to understand you.

I left the others knowing
I had to work this by myself.
But now the feeling's growing,
I would be better off with their help.

So baby, what we've got, has lately, not been enough, not been enough.

I wish I had your scarf still, that once embraced, and kept me warm. I wish you could be with me, in these last days when I am still hopelessly poor.

Stay out of trouble, stay in touch. Try not to think about me too much.
