Under the Gun

Kris Kristofferson

Break a man, break a promise
Break a heart, break a home
Take a long hard look at a heaven
Gone to hell under the gun

See the child, young and hungry Growing wild, on the run And he'll die reaching for freedom He was born under the gun

Swollen men, blind with power Break the rules, one by one With their lies raising the danger Of their games under the gun.

No more time, no more chances No more wars will be won In the end only the losers Hold the land under the gun

Hold the truth like a candle
Let it shine like the sun
On the love that's left to believe in
In a world under the gun.