Born Losers

Matthew Good

When the lights come on this whole place gets ugly but when they're out strangers fall in love she could never say that flat out she don't want me cause I could never say that half way ain't enough

New Order's on the turn table we're dancing cause what else do you do when you don't talk? crucified to crawl into your mansion
Ya, that's why I learned to crawl before I walked

We're back where we belong straight back where we belong no days for nights, no cocaine cons just back where we belong

Take me out back to your piranhas
And beat me until I can't even stand your whole life a plane without no landing gear so if this is it then come on let me land

That trailer trash pedigree is calling it rats you out when you're down on all fours me I like to cast my death on yesterday cause what doesn't kill us now just makes us better whores

Go put it in the ground go bury it some place it can't be found go put it in the ground
