

When It Falls Apart

Matthew Perryman Jones

Here we go again
It's all the same
A familiar scene
But we call it by a different name
It's an alibi of innocence
We work so hard for it all to just make sense
But it won't make sense

When it falls apart the pieces fit
But you won't see it 'til you're blinded
You can let it go or hold it tight
When you loose your life you will find it

Another day begins
Oh, it's nothing new
These lessons come to me
Dressed in déjà vu
I thought I had it all sort of figured out
But she stripped me clean
And exposed my doubt
That's what it's all about

When it falls apart the pieces fit
But you won't see it 'til you're blinded
You can let it go or hold it tight
When you loose your life you will find it

In the dark on my knees
Is when I hear her sing to me
Oh, why's the truth so hard to take
The heart cannot go free 'til it breaks

When it falls apart the pieces fit
But you won't see it 'til you're blinded
You can let it go or hold it tight
When you loose your life you will find it
