It's the smell of hot summertime trash
It's the city noise of a busy street
It's a train derailed and a two car head on freeway crash
Each time we meet
"And if it comes as some sort of a surprise", she said "That I seem so composed, I've kept this moment closer to my eyes", she said,
"Than the glasses resting on the edge of my nose"
Shadow am I!
Shadow am I!
The question of a person, no said reply
Wolf am I!
and Shadow cast on the sheep as I pass by Shadow am I!
Shadow am I! or like a wearing-black-socks-and-white-woolen-locks Wolf am I, and shadow she was grace and green as a stem, but I walk heavy on delicate ground
...as I go showing off again
Self-impressed by how well I can put myself down!
And there I go again
To the next further removed level
Of that same exact feigned humility!
this for me goes on and on to the point of nausea Shadow am I!
Like suspicion that's never confirmed
But it's never denied Wolf am I,
no, "shadow" - I think - is better as I'm not something as the absence of something So SHADOW AM I!
the material world seems to me like a newspaper headline-it explicitly demands your attention and it may even contain some truth and what's really going on here?
one day the water's gonna wash it away and on that day, nothing clever to say.
