What?

Mount Eerie

What do I want with my life now that I'm blinded by your light? Should I keep trying to see through it or just lovingly close them, should I? What do I want now that the air leaves my lungs and I roll over to you in the night? Should I breathe you in, you'll float in What do I want when we're apart, now that I'm wed to you? I am holding open door, though I will not contain you What do I want with my soft skin now that you've eaten me, my bride? Nothing, I do not want, just let me feed you What do I endlessly ask about now that your love swells and pounds me? I know nothing now that I know you, your fog's wrapped around me Invisible inside, dumb and blind Newborn babies come to life on my face

They say "Ta-da!"
