

The Chance You Didn't Take

Nick Lachey

Feeling the weight of the world on top of me
Just throw it away, throw it away
Cause it doesn't really matter anymore
All the things you said I didn't see
At the end of the day, end of the day
Does it really count if noones keepin score

I've been running scared
Heading to nowhere
Leaning not to care
Live for the moment cause

Sometimes you lose, sometimes you win
All that matters in the end
Will you live to love again
Sometimes you bend, sometimes you break
Only thing that you regret was
The chance you didn't take
(the chance that you didn't take)
Oh chance you didn't take
(the chance that you didn't take)

All of the superficialities
Just give it away, give it away
Cause it all amounts to nothin in the end
And all the shit that's thrown in front of me
The games that we play everyday
It's taking all the energy that I can spend

So stop the circus now
Turn this thing around
Just be true to the voice that's inside of you

Sometimes you lose, sometimes you win
All that matters in the end
Will you live to love again
Sometimes you bend, sometimes you break
Only thing that you regret was
The chance you didn't take
(the chance that you didn't take)
Oh chance you didn't take
(the chance that you didn't take)

I think I'd rather have loved and lost
Then lived my life lost and lonely
I'm prepared to pay the cost
Had my heart commenced for you
To all that I can do

Sometimes you lose, sometimes you win
All that matters in the end
Will you live to love again
Sometimes you bend, sometimes you break
Only thing that you regret (yeah)

Sometimes you lose, sometimes you win

All that matters in the end
Will you live to love again
Sometimes you bend, sometimes you break
Only thing that you regret was
The chance you didn't take
(the chance that you didn't take)
Oh chance you didn't take
(the chance that you didn't take)

The chance you didn't take
Oh chance you didn't take
The chance you didn't take
