

Sometimes

OMD

And I just feel...

And I just feel...

Sometimes I feel like a motherless child

And it doesn't matter if I say I love you

No matter how good today is, at the end we just sleep in our bed

There was a vision once that I know we've lost

Nothing now has a value, but it all has a cost

Sometimes I feel like a motherless child

And you wonder why I'm drinking more and more each day

I don't want to come home, I don't want to stay

Because the world revolves around what you do and feel and think and say

And if I express myself, it just drives you away

Sometimes I feel like a motherless child

Sometimes...

And you wonder why
