Cusp of Eternity

A child of autumn was born Into a world of deceit and death And a land of ice A break of bonds would take her away And install a sense of loss and eternal sorrow

She walks across the country She holds her head up high in the rain A mother is screaming for help And she turns around to stare At a scene from her memory

She is hiding a wish in her heart That flows through her blood always And it's culled from a dream That someone is waiting to say her name And call her to his side at the cusp of eternity
