Trap Door

Ozzy Osbourne

Can you see your reflection False strength, hollow protection Run from pain and rejection The truth stabs again

Till the skin is broken And the cut is open And the words once spoken Just fade away

Too late, standing on the trap door Too late, standing on the trap door Too late, standing on the trap door Too late, standing on the trap door

Big head leads to confusion Strong heart pumps up delusion Tough talk, one voice communion Medicate the pain

Justify your ego Living with denial And the thoughts so vile Won't fade away

Too late, standing on the trap door Too late, standing on the trap door Too late, standing on the trap door Too late, standing on the trap door

Can't sleep? 'cause you've made your own bed The sentence of the helpless Sink deep to the trial in your head The court of the selfish Why? Tell me why? Can't evade or escape the reality

A true lie and a broken promise A Judas and a doubting Thomas A tragedy just to keep you honest Guilty always fall

Through the trap door Fear the trap door Through the trap door The trap door, the trap door

No fear, too scared to look up Can't win, nothing but bad luck Clock ticks, your time to face up You can't run for long

When your world is broken Your trap door is open The very words you choke on Just fade away

Too late, standing on the trap door Too late, standing on the trap door Too late, standing on the trap door Too late, standing on the trap door
