In and out of focus, time turns elastic
In and out of focus, in and out of focus, time turns elastic

In and out of focus, in and out of focus, time turns

And when I stay too long, I went outside and stared \mbox{Arms} outstretched and long, moved straight across the sky

(In and out of focus, in and out of focus)

If I could wrap my arms around this globe Hands, touch the green and brown I'd sink into the cool, cool ground (In and out of focus, in and out of focus)

Seen all, seen all, seen all summer Seen all, seen all spring

But I'm a submarine, submarine sinks below the ground A submarine, I'm a submarine, submarine sinks below the ground

Now that the leaves turned to gold The moments all glow, frozen and free from time And out here on my own, I watch it ebb and flow

Here with the fire burning low in the honey mist that breathes

Crooked maple fingers trembling all around I feel the winds that blow

Out here between the dark and light
The summers gone, and the reeds bow down
As the colors change all along the waterline, oh

And when it's time the landslide will free what flows inside

While all around the rocks collide, you finally see the lines

That points towards the light that never dies

Melody, shelter in the darkness take hold of me now Memory, trapped in a corner, dark fingers are long But all around, streaming down, rays of blue light calling out

These silver sounds are raining down on me
Here on the wheel the rhythm's turning all around
Up above the dark, it's sky is bleeding
I feel the world turning upside down

These are the reasons that we lay down on the ground Drawn through the funnel, all the colors run together turning round

Wait for the waves to come and carry me away Down on the ground the sounds of voices in the echoes seem to say And as the carousel circles unceasingly Watch while the ripples decay in this rolling time In cascading, the wind set the wheels in motion And it's turning in the mist around

Rolling and turning into the mist around me
Kissed by the water and held in your mother's arms
Green where you tumble and roll in these fields

The shapes of the bodies, a ship in the sun While the blossoms all scream and it sleeps around me The earth and these memories yields around me

In and out of focus, time turns elastic, time turns In and out of focus, time turns elastic, time turns

Touches these woods and these waters all paved with $\ensuremath{\operatorname{\textsc{gold}}}$

Gleaming in daylight their voices ring on They're cold while they're pointing, lay down in the storm

And this life is bending and swelling around me Rolling and turning into the mist around me The winds all arising in the west around me And the carousel turns into breath around me

In and out of focus, time turns elastic, time turns In and out of focus, time turns elastic, time turns In and out of focus, time turns elastic, time turns In and out of focus, time turns elastic, time turns
