

Drifting Futher Away

Powderfinger

Don't go too deep into the flood
Don't wade too long, you'll poison my love
Don't shut me out, don't hold it all in Don't let my venom get under your skin

'Cause every word and every turn
Every sign points to your hurt
With every hour your drifting futher away

Come make your peace, come find your way
Come lay your wreath at the alter of change
Don't lose your step, don't break the bones
Don't shoulder the burden out there on your own

'Cause every word and every turn
Every sign points to your hurt
With every hour your drifting futher away

Don't banish me then bid me home
Then tell me where I came undone
Don't harbour love like it's all your own
Then linger over what you've done
Don't sink underneath the weight of when you're trying to carry way too much

And you never should have let go
You could have joined in the whole show
I never should have let go
I never should have let go

'Cause every word and every turn
Every sign points to your hurt
With every hour you're drifting further away....