Day After Day

The Pretenders

Way up in the sky Over the city, over Tokyo Silver light, summer moon You'll be over somebody's winter this afternoon

While the dolphins swim in the sea You're going gray, my baby Still the war is waging endlessly Day after day, day after day

Way up in the sky Over the city and Lake Erie You remember the flats, you were there Out every night Mr. Moonlight

Round and round and round we go Just like yesterday

Way up in the sky Over the city where you sleep tonight The light outside your window blinks Hotel, hotel, hotel Open the blind and dream in a moonbeam

When the war's finally over We'll be together And pick up where we left off
