

Floating Hearts

Sheena Easton

Darker grows the moon, and shadows steal across the prison of my room
I fight the sleep back from my eyes
I know Ill only be alone when I rise, Ill only be alone when I rise

Candles flicker out, the curtains flutter and a chill is all about
I keep reliving yesterday, time wont make my memories fade away
My memories wont fade away

When life was just a carousel, a penny in a wishing well
A heavy-lidded summer night under the stars
Our pleasures were so easy then, I never gave a thought to when

Wed come apart, victims of floating hearts

Love was in the air, and I believed there'd always be enough to share
I never felt the winds of change, your love for me so suddenly blown away
Your love for me has flown, flown away

Wed come apart, victims of floating hearts
Wed come apart, victims of floating hearts...
