You'd have to be an acrobat to touch her
Where she can feel a thing
You'd have to be a race car driver to catch up with him
You'd have to be an astronaut
You'd have to be a shrink
You'd have to be an acrobat

'Cause where they go Where they go, nobody knows

'Cause where they go Where they go, nobody knows

Nobody knows Nobody knows

She throws out her feet he holds them He stands on her hands, trips him

You'd have to be an acrobat to touch her You'd have to a saint
You'd have to be race car diver

'Cause where they go Where they go, nobody knows
