It Could Be Anyone

The Church

Within this city will come to your children Identical sisters in mirrors of haze Magnetic disturbance distorting the meters Unendurable silence sucked into the phase

The first of these daughters appears in the vacuum The void that's created in an absence of light Perpetually chanting the great Maha mantra She heralds the current that holds back the night

Anyone, could be anyone

The second descends through electric attraction Distributing wings, that've never been used When certain conditions fulfilled by the future Momentarily lucid, permanently fused

In the hills and mountains the hawks and the eagles Hang on the breezes and glide on the clouds
They pull down a torrent that shorts out the circuits
Negating the fires and drowning the crowds

Anyone, could be anyone

Without a trace of suspicion the message transmitted It's certainly altered, it's no longer true Bursting in temples, it brings on the jungles Breeds good doctors nobody knew

When north meets the south, when right meets the left When parallel lines begin to converge We're transcending factors, fake the arrangements Charge-positive sky, the monster submerged

And when this is over, and when it is finished The mission accomplished, the purpose complete Back at the beginning Eden prevails Back at the start, back on the street

Anyone, could be anyone