My independence is calling my name A doubtful voice divides my faith My independence only hesitates An unsure choice I can't embrace You're going to have to carve me, Carve me from stone Right to the bone or I'll end up alone Playing the role Of someone in control Why do I rush to slow down Why do I rush to slow down everything Why do I rush to slow down Why do I rush to slow down everything Will the dice ever roll Will I ever know Will the plot ever twist Or will I still resist I'm playing the part of a lost realist My indepednce is turning the page Tomorrow comes we start to fade My independence only complicates It's not enough to meet half way You're going to have to carve me Carve me from stone Right to the bone Or I'll end up alone Playing the role Of someone in control Why do I rush to slow down Why do I rush to slow down everything Why do I rush to slow down Why do I rush to slow down everything Will the dice ever roll Will I ever know Will the plot ever twist Or will I still resist I'm playing the part of a lost realist I only keep what I give away I only keep what I give away

Why do I rush to slow down
Why do I rush to slow down everything
everything
With the dice ever roll
Will I ever know

Will the plot ever twist Or will I still resist I'm playing the part of a lost realist

Why do I rush to slow down Why do I rush to slow down everything Why do I rush to slow down
