

What If We Don't Get What We Want

13 ENGINES

We were sitting at the head of a car
And her lips were dry and parched
And we turned to each other
We were listening to "Suspicious Minds"

And we're cracking codes and combinations
And we're thinking
What if we don't get what we want

Well, you kick away your golden shoes
Counting what you can afford to lose
And I can't treat you casually
We are not fond of misery

And we're cracking codes and combinations
And we're thinking
What if we don't get what we want

On the frozen lake of memory
You were asking me about my dream
And we're turning to each other
And we are so primitive

And we're cracking codes and combinations
And we're thinking
What if we don't get what we want