

why do we bother sometimes why not give this shit up we're meant to be friends but we can't let our guard down for too long we value our friendship so highly but too easily forgotten when we want what we want we were so tight when we were seventeen what fucking happend that's what I want to know

I think we've lost touch with what our friendships really all about or maybe things have changed people do that's cool we can work it out now we are older and stronger and more our own men just a little confused cause we don't understand why we can't hangout forever like the old days our friendship was real it couldn't have been just a phase the conflict we feel in fact is just confussion cause it feels like you went and changed it wasn't me it wasn't you it's all and illusion happens to us all its just not that strange

I thought we were meant to be friends
