

Consigned to the Wind

4th Dimension

I'll never dispel the shadows between us,
God He knows how long I've tried
I soothed my thirst for vengeance, forgiveness touched my bitter lips,
But still I faced only pain and sorrow...

Sad past, it's shade lingers on,
I've fought and lied, yet it's thee I love...

Hear the tale, flying on the wings of fate, a poem unfolding we
've left incomplete
Frost Flower, can't you see...
We had time, but we lost ourselves, time, time when we could grow divine
To defy Heaven's blessing's a sin, consigned to the wind...

Seasons have passed, the circle's been closed now,
Awkward silence in coldness reigns
Rage of the fools did rule us, searing words as fiery blades,
Plunging deep to the core...

Two wastelands of half-healed wounds, the aftermath due
No glory, to bitter shame we're subdued...

On a winter's night, by the diamond moon, eyes would meet, Chance stirred anew
In the coldest hour we stood still, souls aflame, one Fate to fulfill
Though distant, those memories they won't fade...
Concealed in my heart, yet their flicker remains...

Hear the tale, flying on the wings of fate, a poem unfolding we might yet complete
Frost Flower, can't you see...
There's no time, time it's here, time, time for you to be mine
One word, our circle will bleed, consigned to the wind...

On that winter's night, bright Herald of Doom, by her light I've pledged life to you
In the midnight hour, kneeling still, truthful tears, a promise thus sealed
Not even a shade in your heart will remain...

Hear the tale, flying on the wings of fate, a poem unfolding we 'll never complete
Frost Flower, can't you see...
That in time you'll regret the time, time when you could have been mine

One's fault, my heart is released...

Frost Flower, can't you see...

That in time you'll regret the time, time when you could have been mine

Our love, dawn of a dream, we've consigned to the wind...

Consigned to the wind