The More You Live, The More You Love

A Flock of Seagulls

You never give your heart to a stranger or tell your secrets to a friend you'll put your heart in mortal danger they all desert you in the end

the more you live the more you love or so they say the more you love the more you throw away they say that nothing lasts forever and even true love turns to pain don't trust your feelings to a stranger don't want to go through this again

the more you live the more you love or so they say the more you love the more you throw away

the more you live the more you love or so they say the more you love the more you throw away

don't ever give your heart to a stranger don't ever think that you can go on you'll put your heart in mortal danger turn around and love is gone

the more you live the more you love or so they say the more you love the more you throw away

the more you live the more you love or so they say the more you love the more you throw away

the more you live the more you love or so they say the more you love the more you throw away